Buddha. Another must visit holy spot during parikrama of the Golden temple complex is "Guru ka Langar"- a massive disciplined community kitchen , which gives free food to all the pilgrims visiting the shrine and is open round the clock to serve pilgrims with divine food .While reaching eastern end of the parikrama , one must see Ramgarhia Minars, the two sky touching watch towers. To the southeast of the temple is a tower, the tower of Baba Atal . The Central Sikh Museum is atop the Clock Tower. The temple is open for visitors from 2 a.m to almost midnight and the best time to visit is just before the dawn or before the night draws it's curtain as at both these times, the beautifully illuminated temple complex and melodious recitals of the divine verses is a soul soothing lifetime experience .

JALLIAN WALA BAGH (IN ASR.)

The huge park now filled with flowers and vegetation named Jallian wala Bagh is hardly at a five minutes walking distance from the main Golden temple . The famous memorial at this site commemorates those innocent and peace lover Indians who were brutally massacred or wounded , shot indiscriminately by the cruel British Rulers of that time under the command of Gen Michael O'Dyer on April 13, 1919 at around five O' clock while participating in a peaceful public gathering, which was to the tune
